NYPD ALLOWS THE "PROUD BOYS" TO EVADE SUBWAY FARE

Video showed NYPD officers providing an escort to members of the "Proud Boys" group after a protest at a Queens library, then allowing them to skip the fare at the subway station.

Outrage is growing over how the NYPD appeared to treat members of a far-right hate group at a recent protest over a 'Drag Story Hour' event in Queens.

Video shared on social media shows officers giving some members of the "Proud Boys" an escort from the protest at a library in Jackson Heights to a subway stop the final week of 2022. In addition to the escort, officers held open the emergency exit as well — allowing the members of the hate group to enter the Roosevelt Avenue stop without paying the fare.

On Tuesday, the police department said that officers were de-escalating the conflict between the "Proud Boys" and counter-protesters who said they were protecting the drag story hour event.
